

Service Installation Guidelines

For Residential Customers

About this installation guideline

The term “SJH” refers to “SJH Communications”.

Information about Installations

At SJH Communications we aim to deliver value for money when installing Services at your premises. There can be times when your installation does not go as planned or you need that extra bit of help. SJH believe in flexibility in delivery of service, this installation guideline intends to cover those general circumstances that may affect your service delivery and how we can help you further.

Basic Services

We classify a Basic Service as one that is a single line NBN internet service. The Service is delivered by a FTTN line (copper) or FTTP(Fibre) with an ethernet cable connection for the customer. They both connect to the respective port of a modem with no additional service requirements.

SJH does offer to our customers a standard set-up service where we can come to your premises to install and configure your modem to suit your needs. Standard set-up includes Wi-Fi changes and IP Network Address changes. Any complex on site work required to provide a functional NBN service is not included in the standard set-up and classed as additional work.

If you require this standard set-up service, please contact SJH. Our rates are at our standard hourly pricing. Refer to our ‘Fees and Charges – Residential’ Policy.

Complex Services

These are normally a Business Service and do not apply to a residential customer.

Unforeseen Delays

Unfortunately, sometimes there are factors caused by circumstances that are beyond SJH’s control, caused by the customer, NBN or another 3rd party. In such a case, we will do our best to keep you updated where reasonably possible.

Moving your numbers to SJH and number forwarding

Time frames and number forwarding costs explained

When you move your phone services with any phone carrier there are normally 3 overall steps involved:

- Your old phone company changes its services to allow your number to move away from them.
- Your new acquiring phone company puts your numbers in its system ready to receive calls
- Both phone companies update everyone else where your number is connected on date of porting.

For single line NBN services it is almost instant on the day nominated when the Service is moved.

SJH will not accept responsibility for any call charges incurred by the customer that may arise as a result of any call forwarding or other call costs under any circumstances, including extended delays in porting your numbers.

Change of location

Where the installation of a service is changed prior to or during install to a location other than was quoted.
